a brief bio...

who am I?

My name is Marcos Morales Rodrigo. I am a senior software developer born in Spain in 1982. I speak Spanish (as it is my mother language), Portuguese (I used to live by the border between Spain and Portugal) and English (I have accredited advanced IELTS - C1/7.5). I have full rights to work freely anywhere in Australia as I am approved Australian Citizen (just waiting for my ceremony and passport).

I can describe myself as a highly polyvalent IT professional, serious with my work, reliable, motivated, creative, greatly experienced and skilled with superior attention to detail and proficient communication skills to handle all the stakeholder intercommunications needs.

I have been working in many different industries, companies and businesses adapting myself, acquiring new knowledge during the time and always, very soon, disrupting the place and methodologies to push it further with my analytical, creative and fresh point of view.

The IT industry has been my natural environment for many years and that has given me the experience and ability to create, improve and learn always the cutting edge technologies using the most modern methodologies, tools and skills.

I am the kind of worker that always achieve results, aware about the deadlines, in the best way possible whenever it is within a team, leading it or by myself. Obsessed with perfection, scalability and usability of the final product and project I am involved, giving the final user the best service possible.
